Handsome Donation Received from Polish Society; Dances
now Losing Money

A regular meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross was held on Tuesday evening, President W. Dutil presiding.

A cheque for $36.35 was received from Coleman Polish Society as a donation from the society's recent bazaar. $6 was also received from Joe Lipovski, this amount being deducted from pools run on the world series. Both donations will be acknowledged.

Mrs. W. L. Rippon, of the work room committee, reported on the handsome gift of a box of new clothing, including coats, received from Mr. Frank Aboussafy. Appreciation of the fine gift was expressed by members present and a letter of acknowledgement and thanks will be sent Mr. Aboussafy.

President Dutil reported on the Red Cross Saturday night dances. The first one was a fair success, the second dance brought in only $1 and the third resulted in a loss of $7. Cause of the trouble is opposition from another organization in town. President Dutil, and Secretary Park were authorized to interview this second organization with a view to combining the two dances, thus allowing both organizations to secure weekly revenue for their funds.

Miss A. Yuill reported that the Canadian Red Cross were sending a number of parcels to Polish prisoners-of-war. She explained that the parcels were not sent to any particular individual but to a camp known to house Polish prisoners and there they were distributed among them.

Four bills were passed for payment.

The Work Room Committee is still able to make use of volunteer workers. Much material is on hand and anyone wishing to help either knit sew, etc. need only approach Mrs. Rippon, Mrs. Sherratt, or Mrs. Smith, or call at the work room in the town hall any Tuesday afternoon after two o'clock.

Brother of Former Coleman Lady
Awarded B.E.M.

Story of gallantry when two giant aircraft, loaded and waiting to take off for bombing missions, caught fire accidentally and blew up at an R.C.A.F. station in Britain recently, was told in the award to LAC P. P. Wilkinson, one of the three men to win the British Empire Medal in connection with the incident.

Wilkinson went to the scene when he heard the first explosion and helped a wounded man to safety. The fire had spread to the second aircraft and "dismissing the risk of explosion of its bomb" Wilkinson led three other men to rescue another injured man lying near the first aircraft.

LAC Wilkinson is a brother of Mrs. Adam Walker, formerly of Coleman and now of Vancouver. It is believed he resided here for a brief period in the early twenties.

Miners To Get $1
A Day Boost

EDMONTON, Nov. 22—C.P.)—The three-man royal commission investigating 'age demands of 8,500 Alberta and British Columbia miners today directed a $1-a-day wage increase, retroactive to Nov. 1, to miners not above the rank of foreman or comparable rank, and two weeks' vacation with pay after 12 months' employment.

The findings and direction of the commission, under its powers as a regional war labor board, were made public by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor, chairman of the commission. Making announcement of the awards, Mr. Justice O'Connor said report of the commission, its reasons for the awards and other findings pertinent to the inquiry, will be made public by Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Dominion minister of labor.

ASKED $2 A DAY

The miners, members of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, who responded to a strike call issued by the U.M.W.A. for mid-night, Sunday Oct. 31, had asked for pay increases of $2 a day, vacations with pay and time and one-half for overtime. There was nothing in the commission's findings on time-and-one-half demand.

The demands were made following the strike call and the action was taken, while the commission was sitting in Calgary, against what was termed by miners' leaders as the "dilly-dallying methods" of the government.

The dispute venue was transferred to Ottawa where union executives conferred with Mr. Mitchell and other government officials and as a result of this conference the commission was enlarged to provide it with power to submit recommendations direct to the labor minister. The new powers granted the commission gave it similar authority to a regional war board.

Text of the finding and direction of the commission issued by Mr. Justice O'Connor and Commissioners T. W. Laidlaw and Louis D. Hyndman:

THREE POINTS

The commission, having considered the whole of the circumstances surrounding the application for increases and changes in working conditions and finding that the requirements of sections 25 and 29 (relating to working conditions etc.) of the wartime wages control order have been sufficiently satisfied, the commission therefore directs:

1. An increase in the wages paid to persons engaged in manual employment in the operation of underground coal mines in the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia of $1 per day for all day wage, contract and other employees not above the rank of foreman or comparable rank;

2. Two weeks' holiday with pay at the basic daily wage rate to be granted to such employees who between April 1 and Sept. 30 in any year have continued in the employment of any one employer for at least 12 consecutive months, and provided that such employee has not been absent from his employment for more than 90 days (including Sundays, holidays and vacation) during such 12-month period, except through causes beyond his control

3. That the foregoing be effective as of and from Nov. 1, 1943, as to any employees who were at work on that date, and as of and from the date of resumption of work in the case of all other employees.

Blairmore Votes Against Accepting Proposal

Coleman and Bellevue Vote for Acceptance; Blairmore Votes 200 for, and 232 Against

Voting throughout District 18, U.M.W.A., on whether or not to accept the $1 a day increase and two weeks holidays with pay as granted by the royal commission was held on Monday.

Coleman miners voted better than 2 to 1 in favor of acceptance, official figures being 566 for and 207 against. Bellevue also voted in favor of acceptance, figures being 313 for and 237 against. Blairmore was the surprise packet in the Pass with the majority voting in favor of rejecting the commission's findings. The official amount was 200 for and 232 against.

MINERS VOTE TWO TO ONE IN FAVOR OF ACCEPTANCE

Miners throughout District 18 voted almost 2 to 1 to accept the royal commission wage and holiday award, it was shown when all but 11 small locals had to be tabulated Tuesday night.

The count showed 4,335 for and 2,634 against.

MANPOWER SHORTAGE ALMOST SOLVED

The "manpower" shortage was almost solved, in Coleman at least, last week. Two young gentlemen appeared at the general office of the International Coal & Coke Co. and requested a "job." When asked if they had any special type of work in mind, one declared his willingness to drive a truck, while the other requested that he be allowed to dig a ditch.

Consideration was given the applications, but it was decided that, for the time being, we had better file the request. When told to come back in a few weeks the boys, aged four and five, went off quite satisfied. Perhaps a case of "the spirit was willing — but the years were few" — Contributed.

New School Hours
For Winter Months
Now In Effect

New school hours went into effect on Monday morning. The schedule calls for classes commencing at 9:30 a.m. and continuing till 12:30 noon. There will be an hour and a half for lunch, the classes reconvening at 2 p.m. and continuing till 4:50 p.m.

In remarking on the new schedule Principal Hoyle stated that the reason for allowing the hour and a half lunch recess was that experience had taught him last year that a one-hour lunch period was too short. Many students during the cold weather brought lunch with them. As a result the one or two teachers left to supervise found it an almost impossible job. The hour and a half period will allow students to go home for lunch and afford ample time to get back to school for afternoon classes.

STUART MILLEY RECEIVED BAD HEAD INJURY

As we go to press we have been informed of the death of Mr. Milley.

Stuart Milley received serious head injuries while at his employment on Tuesday morning. He was rushed to the local hospital, where he received medical treatment. A short time later arrangements were made to have him enter a Calgary hospital, the patient being taken to the city in the local ambulance and accompanied by Mrs. Milley and Dr. Maynes. Harry Harris drove the ambulance. On Wednesday morning Gordon Milley left by bus for Calgary, stating before leaving that his father's condition still remained serious.

Selective Service Regulations Re.
Holiday Season

Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service today announced that under an order signed by Honourable Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, under National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, special provision has been made to facilitate the engaging of workers for the Christmas rush by the Post Office Department and retail trade.

From December 13 to January 5, the Post Office Department and retail business may engage women over 44 years of age and men over 59 years of age, without first securing National Selective Service permits. In any case where it is wished to retain after January 5th one of these employees who is taken on without permit, it will become necessary on that date to secure a permit from the Selective Service.

Students and teachers may be engaged for employment during their Christmas vacation, without a selective Service permit, by either the Post Office Department or the retail trade.

In areas where there is no shortage of female employees for essential industries, Selective Service Officers may permit the employment of women under age 44 for employment around the holiday season.

Mr. MacNamara pointed out that in relaxing the regulations to assist with the Christmas rush, it is necessary to still maintain employment controls in general, for the protection of essential industries.

'Twas Treacherous Walking

Slight rain fell during the early hours of Wednesday morning resulting in a film of ice covering the ground. Walking was especially treacherous on the hard surfaced streets and concrete sidewalks and pedestrians were seen to walk with difficulty. The school children thought it lots of fun and gangs of them were seen sliding on the hard surface facing the high school.

Cloudy skies caused the morning to remain quite dark and trucks were using their lights well after 8 a.m.

Films For Education

THERE ARE FEW COMMUNITIES in Canada which are without motion picture theatres, and this form of entertainment is accepted part of the life of these times. Within the memory of most of us, the production of moving pictures has shown great development, and there is a vast difference between the early silent pictures, and the finished productions which we see today. While the screen is considered to be primarily a medium of entertainment, there has been, in recent years a growing realization of its value in education, and also for the spreading of propaganda. Many schools in Canada use motion pictures in their classes, and there are now fine libraries of educational films available for this purpose at various centres in the Dominion.

Films Are Used For Propaganda

The war has given impetus to the use of films for propaganda purposes. The Germans were quick to seize on this method of spreading their doctrines abroad. They also used motion pictures in attempts to terrorize countries into submission in the early days of the war, by circulating films showing Nazi bombing and invasion tactics. Canada, Great Britain, the United States and Russia have used moving pictures to acquaint their people with the extent of their war efforts, and also for educating them in regard to the needs of their countries in wartime. In addition, motion picture photographers have been present on many of the battle fronts and they have made some interesting and remarkable films, some of which are included in the newswreels here. The National Film Board in Canada has expanded greatly in recent years and it has produced a number of fine motion pictures dealing with many aspects of life in Canada at this time.

Germans Spread Ideas In Europe

It has been suggested that films might prove to be a powerful factor in controlling the effect of Nazi propaganda on the minds of the people in Occupied Europe. For many months now these people have been bombarded with German ideology and while it is known that their methods have been in no measure as effective as was intended, it will in many instances have left a distorted outlook which will have to be corrected. Mr. Charles Francis Cox, an American motion picture company executive, who visited Canada recently, expressed the opinion that films might be used successfully in this connection. He pointed out that motion pictures created for entertainment, but showing "that there is a spot where decency prevails, where patriotism is not a gesture, and where the valuable things of life flow from the man himself as an entity unto himself, not from a State welded by the grimy, blooded hands of a few dictators," might prove of great value in dealing with this problem.

Documents Written On Clay Tablets In Early Days

In Mesopotamia, 3,000 years before Christ, official and legal red tape was highly developed. Then as now people had to sign on the dotted line. Although the ancient Near East claims the earliest known systems of writing, its masses remained illiterate. Documents were written on clay tablets by professional scribes but "John Henry's" signature was personally imprinted on the soft clay by means of a seal. The seal was usually in the form of a small stone cylinder, fore-runner of the rotary printing machine. It was owned and worn by the signatory who was protected against forgery by the variety and intricacy of its design. The Royal Ontario Museum has recently put on display a fine collection of these ancient seals.

Our Boys And Girls On Active Service

(By J. G.)

GOSH, you could catch your breath at the bravery (added to non-chance) of some of our fighting lads. Take Telegraphist Chuck, of the Royal Canadian Navy, who hails from Calgary. A grin on his face, this 21-year-old boy though still suffering, lies on a hospital bed and says casually: "I guess you might say I just reached the end of my luck." He had the lower part of both legs amputated when a 2,000-lb bomb ripped through the port bulkhead of the signal room on his ship, sliced his legs from under him, careened out the starboard side and exploded at the water line. Once before he was torpedoed and clung to wreckage 12 hours before being picked up.

The Navy researchers have discovered a secret formula for seasickness which will help our sailors in rough weather. It is taken in the form of a pink pill two hours before sailing and lasts eight hours, when another can be taken if needed. Research also discovered that if you are seasick or very sick, lie down; don't read. As soon as you are better get into the fresh air and try to keep something on your stomach, in the time to your belt. Good hot food is recommended.

Just 19 years old, during his second ops flight, Flt. Sgt. Ken Pulham of Vancouver, flew a Nazi Junkers 88 to bits as it braved his guns. He was one of the Thunderbolt squadron which they approached the target his bomb aimer, Terry Proudlock, of Kindersley, Sask., also got in some telling bursts at another enemy fighter.

Awards of the D.F.C. have been made to two Westerners, FO. W. Dodd of Whitecourt, Man., and FO. J. H. Ashton of Virden, Man. At the same time a similar award went to FO. H. T. Moore of Mossop, Ont., whose heavily armed Typhoon fighter boasts 19 little ice-moons painted on its starboard door. Ashton's award includes the citation that once he attacked an objective so low his plane was struck by flying debris.

Among the instructors at the "University of Flying" in England, the Empire Central Flying School, where seasoned flyers are given a post graduate polish, are SL R. C. Stovel of Winnipeg, and SL R. Newcome of Saskatoon, Sask.

"Ashore and afloat the Navy League cares for the sailors," is the slogan adopted for Navy Week which will be held from Nov. 21 to Nov. 27. The campaign will be focused throughout the nation on the men of sea-gallant Navy and Merchant Navy and the women of the Navy and Merchant Navy among them. Organized in 1917, it operates 22 hostels, clubs and entertainment centres.

Petty Officer Art Cordy, of Winnipeg, has lots of exciting stories to tell now that he's back posted to port, because his eyes aren't quite up to standard. His closest call: "While tied up at a Med. port we were attacked by a swarm of Nazi dive bombers. I never was so scared in my life. They blew the stern off a freighter not 30 yards from us. We were deluged with bolts, rivets and bricks from the Jetties. They straddled us with bombs, but we weren't touched."

Leading Wren Joan Cole of Calgary, Alta., has a unique job. At a town on the banks of the Welland Canal, she does liaison work for the navy, because Allied naval, military and coast guard vessels passing through the canal, one of the busiest man-made waterways in the world, see the officers captain getting information for the navy authorities.

For Benefit Of Goebbels

As To Who Was "Sold Down" At The Moscow Conference

There seems to be doubt in the German mind about the quality and direction of the salesmanship involved in the recent Moscow conference and four-power agreement among Russia, Britain, China and the United States. The doubt is apparent in Nazi propaganda.

For example, Berlin broadcasts beamed at Britain and the United States asserted that the Moscow agreement constituted an Anglo-American sell-out to Stalin. Anglo-Berlin broadcasts beamed at Russia called it a sell-out on the part of Stalin and Molotov to Britain and the United States.

The question of who sold out to whom seems to be bothering Joe Goebbels and his boys. For their benefit it might be suggested that the only selling incidental to the Moscow agreement was not "out" but "down" and had to do with Hitler and Company and any river they care to name—Buffalo Courier-Express.

HAVE HIGHER PROTEIN

Soybeans produced in Manitoba and Alberta under somewhat drier conditions appear to have a tendency for slightly higher protein and lower oil content than soybeans produced in other provinces where the moisture supply is normally more abundant.

Hard On Fishermen

British Columbia's Sockeye Run Was Comparative Failure This Year

Last year, there was an exceptionally large run of Sockeye in the Fraser River, due to unusually favorable spawning conditions four years earlier. That run gave rise to exaggerated ideas in the minds of the public as to the earnings of fishermen and the profits of the industry. This year, there is a different story. And in order that the public may see the picture in true perspective, they should be made aware of the facts.

As at October 2 the Sockeye caught in the Fraser this year amounted to 72,000 cases. This is about one-sixth of the total at the same date last year when the pack was 434,701 cases. The average pack from 1938 to 1942 inclusive was 201,000 cases. This year's pack therefore is only about one-third of the five-year average.

These cold facts mean many heart-breaks to fishermen and their families. They represent homes in which there will be actual shortage of the good things of life which are available to nearly all other classes of workers. They also represent serious losses to many small investors who have risked their money in providing the fishermen with necessary equipment, and in providing the companies with the means of processing the fish caught. A bad season results about the same number of boats, the same amount of fishing gear and the same advance preparations as a good year.

In fairness to one of British Columbia's leading industries, the public should better understand that fishing is much of a gamble. A necessary gamble, but a gamble for all that—Vancouver Province.

"Yes, we believe this, but first comes the primary need of keeping the heritage alive to possess their own," says Otto Zoff in a powerful article given prominence in the November issue of Survey Graphic magazine.

"What have we done to the children of the world?" Mr. Zoff asks. "What is to become of them? So many things have occurred that is beyond man's ability to grasp."

For about 150 years there has been steadily growing movement to protect the lives of children, their health and their spiritual development, the author mentions, reviewing in particular the seeming awakening of the nations, in the breathing space between the wars, to the rights and needs of children everywhere. Then came the undoing. Bombs, gunfire, famine and slavery have broken the bodies of hundreds of thousands of children and youth lies crumpled with the noble resolutions of yesterday.

In their thankfulness that bombs and famine have not yet touched their children, Canadians are prone to overlook that there are other enemies that prey on child life.

It is estimated that since the present war began, 86,000 infants have died in Canada—thousands of them from diseases that could have been prevented if their parents had protected them by simple, available methods.

"Throughout Canada last year there were nearly 3,000 cases of diphtheria and more than 18,000 cases of whooping cough," according to Dr. E. Couture, director of the Division of Child and Maternal Hygiene, Federal Department of Pensions and National Health.

"These two preventable diseases caused over 800 deaths. One marvels that parents are so slow and negligent in having their children safeguarded when the means are so harmless and so readily available."

The infant mortality rate for British Columbia in 1942 was 35 per 1,000 live births. The rate for Canada was 54. "If the national rate was 35 per 1,000 births, it would mean a saving of about 5,000 babies in one year," Dr. Couture points out.

Parents everywhere are urged to protect their children against whooping cough, smallpox, diphtheria and scarlet fever. It is said that "a nation marches forward on the feet of its little children." Surely, children are our most precious asset. Let us make sure that more of them will live to inherit Canada.

The Final Goal

Allies Will Not Stop Until They Have Reached Berlin

Where are we going? To Berlin. It is not for us to know by which route we shall travel. We may go through Italy or via the Balkans. We may land in southern France, in Norway, in Denmark, on the coastline which confronts our own shores.

We may do all these things. But these are only stepping stones to the final goal. It is in Berlin itself that we intend to smash the German war machine and purge the German race. Three years ago we stood alone, stripped by Goliath of all but the sling and the smooth, round stone. But we were enabled to endure.

We were inspired to feats deemed impossible. The sling and the stone were once again enough. Now we attack, and the beast—apparently very strong, formidable and ferocious, yet possibly nearer the point of cracking than we think—is caged.—London Sunday Express.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD

The brotherhood of man is an integral part of Christianity no less than the Fatherhood of God; and to deny the one is no less infidel than to deny the other.—Lyman Abbott.

For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he (Jesus) is not ashamed to call the brethren.—Hebrews 2:11.

The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done.—Mary Baker Eddy.

The only hope of avoiding war is to accept Christianity as a way of life, not only in our private affairs, but in all public and international contacts.—Cannon Sheppard.

Our doctrine of equality and liberty and humanity comes from our belief in the brotherhood of man, through the fatherhood of God.—Calvin Coolidge.

The crest and crowning of all good, Life's final star, is Goodness.—Edwin Markham.

COMMISSION WILL BE SET UP IN LONDON TO ADVISE ON EUROPEAN WAR PROBLEMS

LONDON.—William Strang was named British representative and Fedor Gusev was appointed Soviet representative, on the United Nations European advisory commission which was established at the tri-power Moscow conference.

The United States delegate has not yet been announced.

Strang, undersecretary of state in the foreign office, was appointed Britain's representative with the rank of ambassador.

A communique broadcast from Moscow, said Gusev, Soviet ambassador to Britain, had been appointed as the Russian representative on the commission which will be set up in London and will advise the three governments on European problems as the war progresses.

Gusev came to London as ambassador Oct. 2, succeeding Ivan Maisky, from Ottawa, where he was Soviet minister to Canada, in 1942 and 1943. Strang has long been known as central European and Russian expert in the foreign office and was Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's assistant at the Moscow conferences with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and State Secretary Cordell Hull. Strang was sent to Moscow in 1939 as British representative to a French-British-Russian conference attempting to negotiate a mutual assistance pact. The failure of the mission was capped by the signature of the Russian-German pact in August, 1939, just prior to the outbreak of the war.

The diplomatic expert accompanied Eden on numerous other trips, going to Washington last March for talks with President Roosevelt.

One of the foreign office's behind-the-scenes experts, the 50-year-old Strang's background is significant. As undersecretary, he has been superintending two foreign office departments — the French and central European.

There has been unofficial speculation here that U.S. Ambassador John G. Winant would be the United States representative to the commission.

British Empire Way Of Life Is World Example

LONDON.—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, in a speech here prophesied "colossal victory, victory complete" for the Allies and recommended for "the dark days thereafter" the British Empire way of life as an example of how the world could live in peace.

The Empire's elder statesman made no guess on when the war will end when he spoke to the Royal Empire Society, his second speech since arriving in Britain Oct. 5. In his first address, at the London Guildhall Oct. 19, he predicted a grand assault on Europe in 1944.

Smuts disclosed he came to Britain at the special invitation of Prime Minister Churchill to take a hand in war work and post-war problems and said he is devoting all his time to the task.

Smuts told his audience that: "I have no doubt of the end whenever it may come. I have no doubt that with our grim and unflinching determination to spend ourselves to the uttermost and put our uttermost efforts into the struggle we shall win a colossal victory, victory complete."

After the war, he said, there will be "disrupted humanity, the world milling around in suffering and destruction such as never was known before." The British Empire way of life, along with the Commonwealth's good feeling, comradeship and common outlook could be "a light" to the other three-quarters of the world.

WAR CRIMINALS

Names Of Nine German Officials Mentioned In Broadcast

LONDON.—The names of nine German officials wanted as war criminals for the massacre of students at Prague, Nov. 17, 1939, were broadcast from London in a Czech-Slovak transmission.

The list was headed by Baron Konstantin Neurath, "first protector" of Bohemia-Moravia, and included Deputy Director Karl Hermann Frank and a number of Gestapo officials.

RUSSIA AND CANADA

Two Nations Will Work Together To Develop The North

VANCOUVER.—The federal deputy minister of mines and resources, Dr. Charles Camsell, said in Vancouver that Russia and Canada will co-operate in development of their northlands.

Camsell said that before the Russian ambassador left for Moscow, he arranged to forward to Ottawa all the available data on their northwestern areas. Every department in Ottawa is now preparing questionnaires to be sent to Moscow, and the general idea, as Dr. Camsell explains it, is to learn how the Russians met the problems of development in the so-called "frozen belt."

INDUSTRY SURVEY

To Ensure No Let-Up In Post-War Employment

LONDON.—Immediate steps to survey Canadian industry with a view to postwar conversion were advocated by J. Gray Turgeon, Liberal member of parliament for Cariboo, B.C., and chairman of the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and re-establishment.

Mr. Turgeon told the Canadian club here that he was speaking for himself rather than for the committee when he said the whole future of capitalism and initiative in business affairs was at stake in the near future. He said it was the nation's responsibility to ensure no let-up in post-war employment.

OTTAWA.—Nine officers of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division who arrived overseas recently are taking a course as photographic interpreters, the air force announced.

This marks the first time Canadian women have been selected for the course, although members of the British Women's Auxiliary Air Force have been employed for some time.

Highly secret, the course deals with interpretation of details of photographs taken over Germany and occupied Europe and qualified workers must have comprehensive knowledge of enemy territory and armed forces, communications and industries; must be able to read maps and charts easily and to interpret land markings, both camouflaged and real.

MAJOR ACHIEVEMENT

Has Been Accomplished In Dehydrated Vegetables As A Wartime Food Output

OTTAWA.—Dehydrated vegetables valued at about $3,750,000—almost four times the total for 1942—are being produced by Canadian plants this year, mainly for shipment to the United Kingdom, it was learned.

Officials said this production represents a major achievement in wartime food output, since it is based on Canadian experimental work in past years.

Dehydrated vegetables, easily shipped, vitamin-rich and readily stored, are required chiefly for the armed forces in or near the front line. Of the 6,400 tons being produced this year, some 5,000 tons will go to Britain.

RIO DE JANEIRO.—The repatriation ship Gripsholm, returning Americans, Canadians and other western hemisphere nationals from Japanese internment camps, left here November 16 for New York, her final port of call. She is expected to arrive Dec. 2.

The Swedish vessel arrived here with 1,502 citizens of the Americas who had spent from eight to 21 months in internment camps.

GOVERNMENT IS URGED TO PROVIDE FUNDS FOR CANADA ROAD CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

CALGARY.—At the conclusion of a two-day conference of provincial highway ministers, deputy ministers, engineers and other government officials, a resolution was passed urging the Dominion government to provide funds for a cross-Canada highway construction program following the war.

The resolution urged federal assistance be given for provincial road development as a permanent national policy.

It also asked that federal funds be provided for post-war highway construction extending over a period of not less than five years from the end of the world conflict or at such earlier date as may prove to be advisable.

The extensive post-war highway construction plan contemplated in the resolution would assist in the rehabilitating of men of the armed forces and persons employed in war industries.

The resolution asks the federal government to "state its policy on this important and urgent matter."

The conference, held under auspices of the Canadian Good Roads Association, was attended by highway ministers of seven provinces and representatives of highway departments of all nine provinces.

Highway extensions and development will provide useful employment for many thousands in the readjustment period following the war, Hon. A. T. Proctor, minister of highways and transportation for Saskatchewan, and president of the Canadian Good Roads Association, declared in his report to the annual meeting of the association here.

"Details are now being worked out so that our highways departments may be ready to go into immediate action if, and when it may be deemed advisable to do so during the reconstruction period," Hon. Mr. Proctor said.

"A survey of the road building programs being developed by our provincial governments shows them to be the most comprehensive ever planned in the history of Canadian road building."

"During the past three years road building in Canada has been more or less at a standstill and the deteriorating effects of inadequate maintenance are to be found in many sections of our country."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Dionne's $50,000 Mansion

The news that Papa Dionne and his brood were about to move into their new $50,000 mansion would no doubt be read with a sense of disgust to those energetic fellows that comprise the various War Finance committees scattered the length and breadth of the Dominion. It is their job to encourage their fellowmen to use surplus earnings and savings in the purchase of Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds, and thus reduce inflation at home and aid the boys in the front lines with the weapons of war.

These War Finance fellows use every fair argument at their command to sell their merchandise—bonds and certificates of victory—and ask citizens to withhold building plans, etc., till after the war is won. To have national figures, such as the Dionnes, build a $50,000 mansion in times such as these is an affront to all War Finance workers. Reports state the mansion is fitted with every luxury. The Dionnes have been living in a fairly comfortable home these past few years. It could have sufficed till this war was won, and that $50,000 used to aid the war effort.

Federal Aid For Highway Programs

The Federal Government is being asked by the Canadian Good Roads Association to help provide funds for a post-war highway construction program. There should be no hesitation on the part of the Federal Government to grant this request.

Good roads are self-liquidating. The tourist trade should be catered to as it has never been before. Hon. W. A. Fallow, as new president of the association, should start now in placing revenue from Alberta motorists in a separate fund, so that he will be able to start road construction as soon as possible after the war.

It has always been a mystery to us why, in years before the war, the British Columbia government never borrowed sufficient money to put a good highway through the southern part of the province right to the coast, instead of making uncounted thousands of tourists take the Washington highway and spend a goodly portion of their money in the State of Washington. British Columbia has beautiful scenery. They should make it pay dividends.

Is Social Security Possible?

(Macleod Gazette)

The term is a misnomer to our way of thinking. The law of life is that man must continually strive for improvement, and this can only be achieved by individual effort. Otherwise the race would degenerate if it is taught to believe that the State will furnish all we need to ask so that at 60 years of age we can sit back and loaf in comfort. A man might do this if he has been successful in his job or business to save sufficient to provide for his remaining years. If the State is to provide this happy condition for all who reach 60 years, then one can imagine the amount of taxes that the working people and private enterprise will have to furnish.

These dreams which political parties place before the people, that sufficient taxes will be extracted from so-called monopolies are utter nonsense. There is only one source from which governments can raise money, be they C.C.F., Social Credit, New Democracy, or any other new fangled name, and that is the PEOPLE who must work to produce.

There will always be the "have-nots" wanting to take from the "haves". In our experience we have noticed that there are in all large industries, where wages are standardized, some who rise above the rest by thrift and wise use of their wages. They will own their homes, send their children to university to enable them to engage in professional life, or become engineers. On the other hand, there will be the majority who though on the same wage level, will have very little at the end of their working days, because they spent it as they went along, not even carrying life insurance sufficient to pay funeral expenses, often requiring the passing of the hat to bury them or take care of a widow and children.

Of course "social security" is a nice sounding term to flaunt, giving rise to the impression that we need not bother about saving for old age. Instead of encouraging the individual to use his own initiative to advance his station in life, it encourages him to believe that the country owes him a living. If it is not forthcoming, and he finds himself on the rocks, then the "system" and everything else is wrong, absolutely.

Those who believe in planning for the future are not counting on "social security" to provide them with a living or a pension, for they look upon it as a will of the wisp, like 25 dollars a month for every man, woman and child in the province of Alberta. Those afflicted with physical infirmities must always be taken care of, but to encourage able-bodied people in possession of their mental faculties to believe that easy days are ahead by the provision of "social security" is merely a vote-catching and demoralizing influence. Labor legislation and other measures within our lifetime have improved the lot of the masses, and undoubtedly as time moves on, other improvements will follow. But the law of life will remain as always, that man must ever work diligently and exercise his own ability and talents to secure a reasonable degree of comfort and freedom from financial worry.

BREAD supplies Energy

BREAD is viewed as a nearly perfect food and as the best source of human fuel. It supplies one-fourth of the food energy of Canadians and has helped them build a high national health record.

Fighting Canada's Battles In Northern Manitoba And Saskatchewan Bushlands

(By J. P. De Wet, Secretary, Manitoba Chamber of Mines)
(An interesting continued story of the great Flin Flon Mine)

IN this greatest of all the wars in man's history, in which the application and the products of science are a vital factor, the adequate and continuous supply of metals is essential to the winning of battles.

Take the matter of copper as an example of a familiar and lowly metal whose usefulness to mankind first becomes known to us in early childhood in the form of pennies to buy cent suckers at the store. Today copper is an indispensable element to the soldier, the sailor and the airman in a variety of capacities ranging from the brass cartridge case of the rifleman to the wire that carries the electric current from the generator to the motors of trucks, tanks and aircraft. A bomber airplane uses copper wire by the mile, and tons of it go into a battleship. The important detection device called radar, which helped Britain to beat off Hitler's air attacks and now aids the fighting men on land, on sea and in the air to detect the proximity of enemies, owes its usefulness in large measure to copper.

The Town Of Flin Flon

The strategic mine is produced in great tonnages amid a setting of forest and lake on the boundary line between Manitoba and Saskatchewan, a little south of latitude 55. Here is a town called Flin Flon, population between 8,000 and 9,000, men drawn

Tom Creighton Found The Mine

The finding of the valuable ore body, destined to become one of Canada's major sources of supply of strategic war metals, at Flin Flon, by prospector Tom Creighton, and its subsequent development to the production stage many years later by Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., Limited, who utilized for this purpose combined Canadian and U.S. capital, is one of the great stories of romance and practical business accomplishment of Western Canada's had not seen before, spotted a little copper stain and some chalcocite (copper ore) exposed on a spot which had been blown clear of snow by the wind. He made a mental note of the location and then returned to his camp to continue his winter trapping, with the intention of examining it further in the spring.

Capital Became Interested

His spring examination confirmed his opinion that the find was one of interest, and the following mid-August a thorough examination by Creighton and Jack Mosher, a prospecting partner, definitely established its importance. Their financial backer, Jack Hammell of Toronto, was informed of the find, and subsequent exploration demonstrated its real importance.

After underground examination, both by diamond drilling and by a shaft and other workings, had disclosed an indicated ore body of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons. American mining capital became interested and a decision was arrived at to find out what science could do in the way of separating the valuable metals from their close chemical and physical association with each other and the enclosing rock.

Selective Flotation Solved Problem

About that time mining men all over the world were beginning to recognize the remarkable efficiency of a new process called selective flotation in the treatment of complex ores. About a million dollars were spent by the United States mining investors in proving the adaptability of such a process to the ore from the Flin Flon ore body. First they tested the new process on a laboratory scale, and it worked. Then they built a pilot mill at Flin Flon capable of treating 25 to 30 tons daily to test the process on a commercial basis. Again it worked after some modifications.

The outcome of these successful

Escaped In Plane

Young Danish Aviator Reached Britain In Small Gypsy Moth

A young Danish army aviator escaped in a small Gypsy Moth plane from under the noses of the Germans and flew from Denmark to Britain a few weeks ago, it has been revealed. For two years the young aviator had kept his plane airworthy although the Germans ordered all private planes dismantled in the summer of 1941. He managed to store up 32 gallons of gasoline for his flight across the North Sea. He had no idea exactly how long he was in the air, but it was more than five hours and he flew by compass all the way.

A hooked rug gives your home such a warm, intimate air! And you can hook this charming design easily.

Use any material you have on hand (though woolen is best) and as for colors—the more the merrier! Lovely together are rose, green, black, beige, orchid.

How to begin? On a large piece of burlap draw the shape of the rug, 23 by 37 inches. Then draw a 1-inch border and rule off 15 boxes, each 7 inches square. The formal and geometric designs you draw from patterns.

Now, after sewing carpet binding round your rug and tacking to a wood frame, you can hook.

With one hand, hold a strip of fabric (cut 1/2 inch wide) under the rug. With the other hand, thrust the hook through the burlap and pull up the strip, leaving a loop 1/2 inch high on top of the burlap. Carefully following your color scheme, hook the same way until the rug is finished.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 28

TRUTHFULNESS AT ALL TIMES

Golden text: Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbor: for we are members one of another. Ephesians 4: 25.

Lesson: Exodus 20: 16; 23: 1, 7; Matthew 5: 33-37; John 8: 42-45.
Devotional Reading: Revelation 22: 10-17.

Explanations and Comments

The Law of Truthfulness, Exodus 20: 16. This law refers primarily to the giving of false testimony in a court of justice, and then, naturally, to any false testimony about another given under any circumstance.

"Any damaging statement against a neighbor's character is a most deadly weapon. It is your business to know whether it is true or false before you touch it. Indeed, true or false, you have no right to amuse yourself with a thing so deadly. Unless there is some good and sufficient reason, you must not bear even true witness against your neighbor. The rule is: Keep still, as long as you possibly can."—William R. Richards.

An Extension of the Ninth Commandment, Exodus 23: 1, 7. Thou shalt not take up a false report. Slander has been aptly compared to counterfeit money, which people who would never be the first to take it up, the first to circulate it, do not hesitate to pass along when it comes into their hands. "Tale bearers are as bad as tale makers."

For lack of wood the fire goeth out; and where there is no whisper, contention ceaseth. . . . The words of a wise person are as dainty morsels, and they go down into the innermost part (Proverbs 26: 12, 28). Keep thee far from the false matter. "Literally a 'painted matter,' i.e. a falsehood arrayed in glowing colors. The word suggests what is artificially colored, as in bright red, to dazzle and deceive. So understood, it teaches a solemn lesson. In all times, evil and error have assumed deceptive disguises, robbing themselves in garments of truth and goodness. We have been warned against false witness and false reports, and now are warned against all painted imitations or gilded shows" (A. T. Pierpont).

Jesus Extended the Law Against Perjury to Every Vain and Unnecessary Oath, Matthew 5: 33-37. Again ye have heard that it was said to them of old time (see verses 20 and 27) Thou shalt not swear thyself. Thou shalt not swear falsely. Lev. 19: 12. Thou shalt perform unto the Lord thy vows, Num. 30: 2; Dt. 23: 21. But I say unto you, Swear not at all.

Friendly England

Czechoslovak Officer Writes A Letter To The London Times

I have been living in England for just over three years. During these three years, in the towns and villages of Great Britain, in trains and on roads, in parks and streets, in shops and shelters, pubs and clubs, in drawing rooms and in factories, so many faces smiled at me, so many eyes greeted me, so many friendly hands shook mine, and so many lips spoke a kindly welcome to me. They all belong to friends whose names and addresses are unknown to me. This letter to you, Sir, is the only way I can say good-bye to you people, whom I found to be the kindest people in the world.

largely from the towns and villages of the western prairie provinces daily hoist from the depths of friendly mother earth over 6,000 tons of ore from which other men from the prairie acres extract not only copper, norlands. Creighton, who combined prospecting with trapping, had left camp on New Year's Day, 1915, to see if he could find and shoot a moose, and on a high ridge near a small lake he experiments was a momentous decision, made in 1927, which has had a far-reaching effect on the fortunes of Western Canada. The decision was to spend $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 for the purpose of establishing an important industry employing hundreds of men in the northern Manitoba bushland, namely a mine equipped with metallurgical plants capable of treating 3,000 tons daily and a hydro-electric power plant to supply the necessary power.

Manitoba And Saskatchewan Both Profit

At this point a new link between two prairie provinces was forged. Canada as a Dominion is a partnership of nine provinces, and within that partnership is a subsidiary partnership of Manitoba and Saskatchewan in the possession of a new industry financed jointly by investors of the United States and of Canada. The dual interest of the two provinces in the one mine lies in the fact that the ore body straddles the boundary line between Manitoba and Saskatchewan. One opening into the mine, the North Main shaft, parts of the metallurgical plants and the town of Flin Flon are in Manitoba. The second opening, the South Main Shaft, is in Saskatchewan, just a mile south of the North Main shaft, and the hydro-electric power plant also is in that province. So Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., Limited, employs men in both provinces and pays taxes to both provincial governments, as well as to the Dominion of Canada.

Madame Tussaud's Waxworks Still Big Attraction For London Visitors

The death of J. T. Tussaud came at a moment when the famous waxworks exhibition which bears his name was experiencing a sort of renaissance. Not only is it still as popular as ever with London youngsters and provincial visitors, but it is about the first place for which American warblers on leave in London make a bee-line. The popularity of Madame Tussaud's seems, in fact, to be as perennial as the detective thriller. It was J. T. Tussaud's great-grandmother, who went to London after the French Revolution, who founded the famous waxworks show, place in Marylebone Road. The legend was that she had been compelled to make models in wax of the more famous heads that fell on the guillotine. During his lifetime the late Mr. Tussaud added more than a thousand models to the show, which is perhaps now the only survivor of its kind in Britain. The Chamber of Horrors was the only part of the exhibition that survived a disastrous fire some years ago.

Bean Jonathan

by J.B. Ryan

CHAPTER XII

FARQUHAR balanced his rapier on the table and removed his elaborate velvet waistcoat. The doublet followed, then the stock about his throat and, finally, even the long curled wig. He deflected the lunge with his rapier and advanced toward Jonathan. His points touched with a metallic kissing sound.

A few cautious testings of the guards, then Lord Farquhar essayed the first attack. But in mid-thrust the nobleman slipped on the smooth floor. Jonathan, checking his pary and about to step back to allow his enemy to recover, caught the set gleam in Farquhar's eye barely in time. His stilled sword swept into life, deflecting the lunge flashing up at him from his lordship's stumbling position. Farquhar's rapier slid simply between Jonathan's armpit and ribs but the latter's blade sliced through the cloth and flesh of his lordship's left shoulder.

"First blood, my lord Farquhar!" he reminded grimly.

"A moment's rest, Master Hale?" Farquhar begged. "I find my breath growing a bit short."

Jonathan nodded his acceptance of the recess. Farquhar said, "You gain nothing if you slay me, Hale. Remember the letter that is to be opened when I die of a crime on his conscience. I have not forgotten," said Jonathan. "Neither do I forget that I have sworn to avenge Denys. Murder must be punished, Farquhar."

FARQUHAR, his breath recovered, lifted his sword, and his left hand the length of the blade and flexed the steel. "Then, as long as we are not bargain, Hale," he smiled, "let us go to once more."

With that he took his stance, but instead of advancing as Jonathan expected, the latter raced backward swiftly toward the door. The sword hummed in a terrible arc, lashing sideways and across the face of Matt Tucker.

The chimney sweep was caught wholly unawares. The rapier whirled across his forehead, causing him to drop both pistols and tumble to the floor. "Outside, Davis!" cried Farquhar, leaping forward to meet the charge of Jonathan. "Summon help! Hurry—before it is too late!"

The servant hurried himself over the fallen Tucker, jerked open the door and fled into the hall. Jonathan was helpless to prevent him, for Farquhar, aware of his position, had his left hand on his feet a bit, he was fighting like a madman, forcing Jonathan to give ground for the first time.

"Anne!" Jonathan shouted. "Bar the door! Let no one in until I have finished with this devil!"

The girl darted forward, slamming the door and turning the key. Tucker, blood streaming into his eyes, staggered to his feet to help her clank into place the heavy chain dangling from an iron staple in the frame of the doorway. A moment later his hammer on the panels and the thud of wood against wood echoed through the room, as he tried to blend with the ring and rasp of steel.

The furious onslaught of Farquhar was the extreme test of Jonathan's swordsmanship. Jonathan's rapier was everywhere, but even so, he was unable to block entirely that hope-inspired blade. Farquhar's point whipped in, raking and burning like fire along Jonathan's ribs.

The deepest eyes flashed at his success. But Farquhar had shot his bolt.

The sword met like sledge and anvil. His denuding arm could not hold up any longer. His point dipped, and Jonathan was in, his sword sinking into Farquhar's chest, stained, bloody shirt above the heart, then out, red to half its length.

For an instant his lordship's rapier waved blindly, questioning. Then Jonathan, his hand to the hilt, the tautness dissolved from the bony face and Farquhar, after a stumbling step that was no pretense, collapsed into a heap beside his fallen sword.

Jonathan turned away, needing no examination or waiting to assure himself that Farquhar was through.

"Tucker the door, Tucker," he said, sheathing his sword.

Because of the battering weight against it, Tucker unhooked the chain with difficulty. The door flew open, tearing the chain from the sweep's hand, and men surged into the room like the waters of a released flood.

Jonathan bowed ironically. "Sorry to have kept you waiting, Blaine," he smiled.

Blaine stopped, staring at the body of Farquhar. There were at least a score of men in the room, the Earl of Chelsea, others from the house on Pall Mall, and the servants of Farquhar. Jonathan spotted Davis among the servants and also the remainder of the trio that had been with his lordship that night at Winnet.

"Farquhar is dead," said Jonathan. "It should be believed, that he died in fair fight." He smiled again at Sir Maurice. "Will you accept a sincere apology for that blow I struck you, Blaine? You see, the honor of a lady was involved and I was beside myself with anxiety."

Sir Maurice nodded briefly, glad to see to satisfy the demands of honor so easily.

THE vacuous-faced Earl of Chelsea stepped forward. "Blessed!" he muttered. "Would you believe it, gentlemen, it is hardly more than an hour since Farquhar entrusted me with a paper to be opened when he died. I have it with me." His hand dipped into his pocket, emerging with the sealed document Farquhar had prepared in Jonathan's bedroom.

"Ah, yes, that paper," Jonathan advanced with extended hand. But the subterfuge did not work. Chelsea retreated, thrusting the letter and murmured, "Farquhar warned me not to give this paper up. On the contrary, he commanded me to show it to no one before I read it myself."

"Yes, I know," Jonathan paused, not wishing to alarm Chelsea further. The Earl, he saw, was determined to open the letter on the spot, carrying out his instructions exactly. "I know the contents of that letter," said Jonathan. "I was with Farquhar when he wrote it. If you will examine the wax, you will observe that it is stamped with my insignia."

The Earl turned the letter over, nodding perplexedly as he studied the seal. Before Chelsea could recover, Jonathan went on: "It was I who suggested to Farquhar that you be made the custodian of this paper, since he required a man with the coolness and finesse to handle a delicate matter."

He allowed that sop to Chelsea's vanity to take effect. Then he said: "That paper deals with murder, gentlemen. Lord Farquhar had the knowledge of a crime on his conscience. He wrote that letter to save his soul after he was dead."

THERE was a stir in the room, but of all the various reactions to his words, Jonathan's eyes noted only the sudden alarm leaping into the faces of Davis and the pair who had helped him do Monsieur Denys to death.

"Sir Maurice!" Jonathan said. "While Lord Chelsea reads that letter, will you guard the door? There are murderers in this room."

Blaine stepped quickly to the door and drew his sword. Jonathan continued: "A moment more, Chelsea, before you break that seal. No matter how shocked and surprised you may be when you read what his lordship has written, you are to allow me to speak first when you finish. Is that understood?"

The Earl nodded, then said his thumb under the document's waxed flap. The paper unfolded and Chelsea began to read. Almost at once a startled expression flooded his face and his eyes lifted to Jonathan.

"But—Master Hale—" he spluttered. "Read on!" commanded Jonathan. "I can understand your astonishment, my lord. That paper makes mention of the recent murder of an actor named M. Denys, and it is signed—"

"Yes—but," gasped Chelsea. "Finish the letter," said Jonathan. "Get the facts before you accuse anyone, my lord. Farquhar wanted justice to be served."

JONATHAN watched the man's eyes, waiting for the exact instant when the reading was completed. "It was right," Jonathan said, nodding. "Farquhar has told how M. Denys died and has named the murderer of Frenchmen."

Chelsea nodded heavily. "And," said Jonathan, "the killer is in this room."

"Yes," stammered Chelsea. "Yes, but—" "You heard, gentlemen?" Jonathan swung around. "Farquhar has confessed that he ordered Denys killed, and that Davis, that servant standing there, did the deed? Seize him, before he can get away!"

"No," Davis jumped, startled, and fought the hands reaching for him. "I—I did not do it alone! Roberts and Burton helped to kill him! God's name, if I hang, they shall not go free!"

"But, see here—" Chelsea tried to make himself heard in the tumult spreading through the room. Deftly, Jonathan plucked the paper out of the dazed man's hand. "Fine work, my lord," he complimented, crushing the letter in his fist. "Davis has convicted himself and the others from his own lips."

A hand stole up Jonathan's arm and Anne Jamieson was beside him. "Everything is all right, Jonathan!" she murmured anxiously.

He took her in his arms and kissed her. "Yes, my darling," he answered her. "A miracle has come to pass."

Then Matt Tucker was also at his elbow, grinning broadly, a cloth wrapped to cover the sword gash on his brow. "That ends the game, sir? You will be needing me no longer?" You can do me one last service, Tucker. Find that suit I wore when I first came to London. There are some stout homespun and leather, rather than these ripperees, when I land in Boston."

Anne stirred. "You—you are going to America, Jonathan?"

He nodded. "There is nothing I would like better, Anne. You—you will come with me. There are theatres in Massachusetts, I know, but—"

She laughed throatily, and her hands went up to draw him down to her. "I am through with the stage. As Denys used to say, we are happiest only when doing that for which we are best suited. And now, my dear, to be your wife."

Matt Tucker asked, "Can I engage passage on that ship, too?"

Both the girl and the man took a moment to nod acquiescence, but beyond that they paid the little chimney sweep no attention at all. (THE END)

LETTER FROM BRITAIN

Britain Devotes Substantial Proportion Of Her Productive Power To Assistance Of Her Allies—Cementing Lasting Friendships.

(By Sidney Hornblow)

In Britain today, nearly 25,000 civilians are working as clerks and secretaries to the United States forces. In spite of acute manpower shortage, they have been specially drafted for this work—and what is more, Britain pays their salaries. This is just one of the small items illustrating how Britain is devoting much of her productive power to the assistance of her allies—in the spirit of Lend-Lease in reverse.

Among other examples, consider the fact that between June, 1942 and April, 1943, Britain provided for the American Forces some 1,362,000 shipments of articles and equipment, in addition to 2,177,000 ship-tons of constructive material.

From Locomotives to Locomotives This contribution embraces almost every war need imaginable from lemon-squash to locomotives, from socks to cooking stoves, to say nothing of barbed wire, parachutes, bombs and Spitfire fighter aircraft.

American Forces have been sent to the United Kingdom in large numbers. It does not need special imagination to realize what a great strain would have been placed on America herself and on Allied shipping if these men had had to be fed and equipped over a considerable period entirely from America. Instead Britain is providing them this year with 400,000,000 lbs. of food stuffs, mostly home grown, including potatoes, fresh vegetables, fruit and cereals. Britain has made no charge whatever for the sea transport of the United States troops, not only to Britain, but from Britain to battlefields overseas. Nor does she make any charge to Americans in Britain for road and rail transport when they are on military business.

The repair and servicing of American ships in British ports all over the world is another charge which goes down to Lend-Lease in reverse.

Spare-Time Munitioneers Members of Britain's National Fire Service in the London area alone are now putting in 25,000 hours a week to produce arms and equipment for the fighting services. In their standing hours during periods of fire duty these men are now making anti-aircraft gun sights, fire extinguishers for tanks, containers for dropping supplies by parachute, paddies for armies' dinghies, and scores of parts for aircraft and submarines.

It is calculated that half-a-million man-hours have been put in since the inception of this spare-time work valued at more than £50,000. These firemen undertake to do this work voluntarily.

Simple Jumper Decorated For Heroism

Surgeon Of Royal Canadian Navy Risked Life For Others

Award of the D.S.C. to Surgeon Lieut. Maurice King Hood, of the Royal Navy disclosed the story of his heroism in leaping from the life-covered decks of a destroyer to a convey escort ship to attend 81 wounded men last winter.

He made the jump safely when the two ships were as close together as it was possible to bring them in the wild seas running at the time. A slip in taking off or landing meant instant death.

For 30 hours without a break after getting aboard the escort ship, Hood operated on the wounded men who had been picked up from the destroyer Achates. Using a seaman's mess-deck table as an operating table and supported by two ratings against the ship's rolling and pitching, Hood saved every one of the 81 wounded.
